STOIC TRAINING (DISCOURSES BOOK 3)

The aim of Stoic training is to make you an excellent person. Stoic training consists of three disciplines: desire, action, and assent. You need to train your mind to be concerned only with the choices you make and to be ready deal with whatever the future may bring. It is not necessary for you to be ascetic. All you need to do is see things as they are without adding your judgments to things, people, and events. It is your faulty judgments that are the root cause of 100% of your problems.
